AYRES'S!

A general reduction in all Parasols.

None omitted.

The difference between former prices and present prices is not, indeed, so great as is the difference between a Parasol open and a Parasol shut, but it is very great.

A parasol, like the motion to adjourn, is always in order.

There is a fortunate opportunity now for anyone to get a Parasol, the reduction in price making it money well invested whether for immediate or future use.

The Light Artillery started this afternoon for Lafayette.

Eight real estate conveyances were filed yesterday; consideration, $7,287.

The Journal has recovered from its recent chill, and is again trumpeting for Bailey.

Constant Reader: You can get books at the public library that will tell you the names of the animals of the United States.

Mrs. Minnie Gaunt-Morris, accused of adultery, by reason of her marriage to Morris, the bigamist, has been acquitted by Judge Johnston.

If Major Campbell, of the old Sixth Indiana, is living, he is requested to send his address to John L. Treasurer, 915 Washington street, Louisville, Ky.

Charles Noe, the postoffice clerk, convicted of robbing the mails, was released from the work house yesterday afternoon, the pardon of the president having arrived.

Will Griffin, ex-health officer, states that he is not a party to any combination to be returned to his old place, as he would not have it under any circumstances.

A meeting of property holders interested in the improvement of Washington street will be held Monday evening at the Board of Trade, 7:30 being the hour of assembly.

The fire department was called to T. D. Wiegman's residence, 16 Fletcher avenue, last evening, a lamp having set fire to the curtains of a window. No other damage.

An official call has been issued for the republican state convention in accordance with the order of the executive committee. The total number of delegates will be 1,194.

Mr. C. C. Koerner has not sold his interest in the Indianapolis business college, nor has he any intention of doing the same. Some evil-disposed person must have started the report.

Frank Kellemeier, whose boy was shot by Wilbur Ryan, has preferred a charge of attempted murder, on which Ryan has given bond. There is probability that Kellemeier will recover.

Chas. Block, 27 Davis street, started for his work as usual last Monday, since which time he has been on the missing list. He has a wife and two children, and his domestic relations were pleasant.

Claude Baker, colored, who stole $3, has been sent to the refuge, while James Eddings and Michael Moriarty, who "held up" a boy and robbed him of what he had, have been released on good behavior.

Edward Algire, the drug clerk, of West Indianapolis, who mysteriously disappeared some months ago, is still missing, and the family is no nearer a solution of the cause of his disappearance than they were on the day of his departure.

It is now known that Alexander Ingalls suffered no broken bones yesterday when caught by the elevator in Fletcher & Sharpe's building, and although he was terribly wrenched and bruised, there is probability of recovery.

It is stated that Mrs. Mary Lawn, the New York woman, who was robbed and deserted by her step-son in this city, attempted suicide by leaping from a balcony, and last night she was scarcely out of danger. She is said to feel the loss of her money more than the desertion.

The newboys' home has gone into the banking business for the accommodation of patrons. W. B. Burford has given the home a strong box and the Bowen-Merrill company a set of books. The accounts already started range from a penny to a dollar. Only a cash business is done.

William Brown's residence, near Augusta, was robbed night before last, and yesterday Alva Jones, a young man, took after the supposed thief on his bicycle, and had the satisfaction of running him to cover. The thief gave the name of Jacob Balingier and he was taken to the Danville jail.

Peter Romberg, who spent six months in the Indianapolis work house for tampering with the whisky in Fairbank's distillery, at Terre Haute, is said to have been the most morose prisoner ever incarcerated.

Early yesterday a fellow employe told Warren Hillard, at the Capital elevator, that he dreamed during the night that one of Hillard's hands had been crushed in the machinery. The latter turned with a laugh that he was in no danger, but during the day he caught his left hand in the belting and the thumb was nearly torn off.

SUPPORTING UNFORTUNATES.

Boys and Girls Thrust into Asylums as Incurable - Gov. Gray's Views.

"It is the province of the state to take care of the helpless," said Governor Gray, "but it is also the duty of parents who are financially able to meet the expenses of keeping their children who are placed in state institutions. There is a growing disposition to shift the burden upon the state that private families are amply able to bear. If we should build an asylum in every congressional district and not surround it with some safeguard to insure every one would be filled with feeble-minded persons, feeble-minded children or incurables. Some parents, who have found out that the reform school boys are a waste of money, have sent their children to a well-known institution almost drive their boys into it, and there are girls out at the female reformatory who never committed a crime. The parents, wanting to get rid of them, have slipped them into the institutions or compelled them to live such lives that they naturally drifted into these places. I shall call the attention of the legislature to this matter, and shall insist that the laws should be made to provide for the payment by wealthy parents of all expenses incurred by the state in caring for their unfortunate children."

The superintendent of the home for feeble-minded children says that there are hundreds of applications for admission there, and that he can accommodate and if this benevolence is to be continued by the state some larger provision should be made for this class of unfortunate, and the state must be made to pay for the care of their children. Of course a great many are unable to pay."

There is much controversy about the number of feeble-minded people in the state. The governor has requested the secretary of the state board of health to learn, if possible, the approximate number. The governor thinks that two of the asylums will accommodate all of the incurables; that in appropriating the third to the feeble-minded children, something will be done that will tend to reduce the number of future incurables, since from the feeble-minded children the list of insane adults is largely supplied.

The Trial of Harrison.

The preliminary examination of Alfred Harrison, accused of larceny, was resumed last evening before Judge Snook, and the court decided that expert testimony was admissible to prove the crime. H. W. Olmstead, proof-reader of The News, and who became acquainted with Harrison's writing while serving in a similar capacity at the Times, before Harrison turned gangster, A. C. Jackson, and Henry L. Smith, of the First National bank, testified that the same hand that wrote the papers, acknowledged to be Harrison's, also wrote the check. V. H. Silvers, of the Hotel Bates, declined to consider himself an expert, and he was excused from testifying. T. J. Bryant, of the business college, was also examined at some length, and in a manner damaging to the defendant, even going into details to show that the papers were written by Harrison while he was sitting down, while he was standing up at the time of drawing the check. After Mr. Bryant had finished, the defense withdrew for consultation, and afterward requested that the case be continued until Monday evening, which was done. Denny and Company are now both engaged for Harrison, together with Walls, Green and Turner.

Mrs. Talbot's Benefit.

The benefit to Mrs. Lida Hood Talbot at Tomlinson hall last night was largely attended and must have been gratifying in every respect to the beneficiary. Applause was discriminatingly bestowed upon the participants, Mrs. Talbot coming in for a generous share. She was heartily cheered in each number. Mr. Riley met as usual with an ovation. The Misses Burt and Oyster, Mrs. Bailey, Mr. Miller and the Telegraph quartet contributed to the program and to the pleasure of the audience.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NOTES.

Tim Nolan, of headquarters, has been transferred to house No. 7, during Chief Webster's absence from the city.

Herman Oehler, the newly-appointed member, is an ex-member of hook and ladder company No. 2, located on South street.

W. R. McGinnis, driver of chemical No. 1, at headquarters, was quite seriously hurt by being kicked by one of the horses last night.

It is said the owners of certain property, which was destroyed by fire on the 4th inst., at Cincinnati, will sue the city for the amount of loss sustained.

The chimney of a manufactory in Breslau is made of paper and stands fifty feet high. The pressed paper, it is said, has almost perfect powers of resistance of fire.

The fire protection at the home of friends of the fire department is being improved by having the old styled extinguishers replaced and those of more recent date placed in service.

Chief Webster has awarded the contract for hay and straw to Mr. Jesse Wright, of this county. The baling heretofore done at engine house No. 10 is awarded to the contract calls for baled material.

Last week, while an inspection of the Kokomo fire department was being made, it was discovered that some sounders had cut the hose of both hose companies. The hose were new, and this act will cost the city about $300.

Chief Webster intends impressing the importance of notices sent from his office on the minds of those to whom they are addressed, by filing against them in the city court. Considerable attention is being shown by some of the recipients.

Residents in the vicinity of Yandes and Eighth streets and also those on Clifford avenue are in their efforts against city legislators, owing to the scarcity of water in those districts for extinguishing fires. On Thursday last it required a line of hose 1,000 feet in length to reach the fire, and one company was compelled to wait the arrival of another before that could be done, as but 750 feet of hose is carried by any one company. Several citizens should be built there to give them the needed protection.

The motion of Councilman Rooker, to give the firemen twenty-four hours off duty each week, is meeting with much favor in some quarters and less in others. It is claimed by some it will make the hours more confining, as the men will be asked to relieve other members of the company at meal hours, and when on duty, they will not be permitted to leave the house without a substitute. At present one night is given each member every week and by the permission of his captain can enjoy an absence of three hours, without a substitute.

The enormous fire waste of this country, combined with the vast amount of money expended annually for fire protection, has caused much kicking and many new ideas to spring and bud forth in the various fire journals. The heavy tax levied in some eastern cities upon the property owners has caused them to complain of the insurance laws, they deeming it to be a burden the companies should lighten, as they receive the benefits of the fire department more than the citizens themselves. The result of such opinions has caused the subject to appear in every available shape, and at present it is a complicated affair. A table has been compiled with twelve of the leading cities, and the number of alarms and the losses have been so arranged as to show the number of inhabitants to each alarm, cost of same and the cost per inhabitant. Each inhabitant of Portland, Ore., pays $2.67 per year for the support of that city's fire department, and each alarm of fire costs $1.17. In Detroit the per capita expense is $1.67, and in Memphis, Tenn., $1.53. In Chicago it is $1.10, and in New York $1.05, which is also the rate given to this city. In this city, however, the department does more work than that of New York in proportion to equipment, for while in New York the cost of the department per alarm averaged is $250, in this city it is only $272. The average cost of the fire departments that protect the cities shown in the table per alarm is just $207. Thus the annual expense for fire protection per inhabitant in each city is $1.21, an amount which is doubtless greatly in excess of the popular belief.

Mrs. Hendricks and the President.

There is a cruel and entirely groundless story going the rounds of the press just now to the effect that Mrs. Hendricks was shabbily treated by the president during the time that she was here with the vice-president. A gentleman who was very close to Mr. Hendricks and his wife said to your correspondent the other day that he knew, of his own knowledge, that there was not a word of truth in the whole story.

"I know," he said, "that the president invited Mrs. Hendricks to the white house to take part in the ceremonies there, and that she went there in pursuance of that invitation and enjoyed very greatly the exceedingly courteous treatment that the president constantly awarded her. More than that, I know that Mr. Hendricks watched those things jealously. He was entirely devoted to his wife, and would have resented any lack of attention to her most promptly and vigorously. So far from giving any such feeling as his last words spoken to some of his nearest friends here were in apparent gratification because of the attentions that had been bestowed upon his wife, he was in the hall of White House near their rooms the very morning that they left here, for what proved to be his last departure from Washington, and heard him speak in the terms of the greatest pleasure to a close personal friend of the honors paid his wife both by Mr. Cleveland and others. The idea that he had any thought that she was not properly treated is absurd, and if there was any man who was careful to see that his wife was afforded her full due of honor, that man was Mr. Hendricks."

In Memoriam of Dr. Funkhouser.

A called meeting of the Marion county medical society was held last evening, to take action on a memorial of the late Dr. Funkhouser, and a committee headed by Dr. P. H. Jamison reported appropriate resolutions, which were unanimously adopted. Drs. C. W. Thompson, Woodburn and Jamison are the only physicians left in the city who began the practice of medicine thirty-five years ago, and Dr. Jamison talked at some length, with evident feeling, of his long and intimate association with the deceased. During his forty years of continuous practice in this city, he believed Dr. Funkhouser had given away $100,000 in fees, and he spoke of him professionally as being in advance of his time, distinguishing between typhoid and typhus, and fighting the use of calomel and bleeding in fevers when all the profession was against him. He was a student and a close reader, but he eschewed fiction, and he was a great lover of Carlyle, Macaulay and Irving. Tributes were also paid by Drs. Hartley, Woolen and Oyster, whose acquaintance with him dated back to 1847; Eastman, Van Vorhis, Waterman, J. L. Thompson, Hadley, and the younger generation, who were a student under him, and he was announced that the funeral of the deceased would be held to-morrow, 3:30 p. m., at the First Baptist church.

Bethany Assembly Meetings.

"The Bethany Herald," the organ of the Bethany assembly, gives a program in detail of the camp-meeting services to be conducted by the Christian Brotherhood of Indiana, beginning August 5, and continuing through August 22. During these days the various auxiliaries of the Christian church will hold their annual meeting on the Bethany grounds. The grounds have been much improved; several additional cottages have been built; the six-acre lake has been given a permanent supply of water. The calendar for the meeting is as follows: August 5, Bethany assembly day; 6, children's day; 7 and 8, Bethany assembly day; 9, temperance day; 10 and 11, State Missionary society; 12 and 13, Women's Board of Missions; 14 and 15, Bethany assembly day; 16, 17, State Ministerial association; 18, 19 and 20, State Sunday school association; 21 and 22, Bethany assembly day.

The Y. M. C. A. building fund has reached within $725 of the minimum amount with which it is proposed to begin the construction of a new house. By Sunday it is confidently expected that the amount will have been made up fully, and to commemorate this success it is proposed to convert the Sunday night union meeting in Tomlinson hall into a Y. M. C. A. jubilee. The exercises will begin early - 7:30 o'clock, and the following program will be followed:

With piano, organ and violin obligato accompaniment.

Benediction - R. V. Hunter.

The presence of the late temperance folks' meeting and the convalescence of democrats and republicans, all at the same time at the Grand hotel, seems to have emphasized the facilities possessed by that hotel for the handling of a crowd regardless of their incongruity and pleasing. The representatives of these meetings in great numbers went away singing the praises of "The Grand." Mr. Pingst's career in the successful management of the Grand for the past nine years proves that there is a special gift in it, but something above that is needed to keep the lead in this age of improvements, and Mr. Pingst has been adding much recently. In addition to the superb office furnishings, which the public sees at a glance, the latest air construction safety elevator has been put in, and, more than all, a new and commodious ordinary, newly furnished throughout.

The luncheon at the house for the present season has largely exceeded that of previous years, and the Grand is particularly fortunate in that best of all backing - a regular army of "old stand-bys," as they are termed in hotel parlance. No flattery or invidious comparison is meant in saying that the Grand is in a peculiar manner pervaded by that atmosphere of hospitality and home-feeling which can not be simulated. A fussy show of concern for the welfare of guests is one thing, but that quiet, easy anticipation of every want before it is asked for is another thing, and that is what "the Grand."

The Grand has been selected for the headquarters of both the republican and democratic state conventions. And if there is anybody who knows what good eating is, it is a politician, the table and service at this house being notable as the very best in America.

The following is a partial list of candidates whose headquarters will be at this hotel:

For Auditor of State - Democrats, Charles A. Munson, Dr. A. B. Pitzer, Hon. Gerard Reiter; republicans, Bruce Carr, A. C. Daily.

For Clerk of Supreme Court - Democrats, Martin Krueger, J. M. Saylor, Cas. Byfield, Will J. Horlick; republicans, Will T. Noble, Hon. S. T. Yancy, Captain Whitacre.

For Attorney General - Democrats, Hon. H. D. McMillen, ex-Senator J. V. Kent; republicans, John W. Lovett.

For Secretary of State - Democrat, R. W. Miers; republican, Charles F. Griffin.

Treasurer of State - Democrat, Thomas Byrne, republican, N. S. Byram and Captain D. E. Beem.

Judges of Supreme Court - Democrat, Hon. John R. Colthro and Hon. Thomas F. Davidson.

The Grand has a "Masquerade room," that is, a room that no candidate has ever occupied without being successful. There has been much stir among candidates to find and engage this particular room.

Attention!

Emmett Guards will meet at their armory at 2 o'clock sharp. Business of vital importance to be decided on.
